If you think the services of a house inspector are useful only when you are about to purchase a house, think again.

There were a number of projects that needed attention in our home, we had no idea what their priorities were. Did the moss growing on the roof have a higher priority than replacing the water tank? and how about that strange smell in the garage or the front deck?

I hired Glen Duxbury and Associates, Glen come on time, he not only told me that the water tank was in danger of erupting at any moment, he gave me the priority on the projects. He was very knowledgeable, not condescending (something that happens to some men when talking home repairs to women), he explained, he advised and he was friendly. I felt he really wanted to help me uncovering the problems today before they became tomorrow's costly nightmares.

Ah the smell in the garage? It was not dry rot, it was simply solved by running the sink more often... we were scared of dry rot....and thanks to Glen we now know what to do.

So don't be scared or overwhelmed of what may lurch behind the walls, call Glen and have piece of mind.
